SLAIN MAN SAID TO BE IDENTIFIED

FARM LABORER READS DESCRIPTION OF RIVER CAMP MURDER VICTIM AND THINKS MAN IS HIS UNCLE.

FATHER IS NOTIFIED

Nephew Believes Himself Certain Body Is That of Relative.—Parent Called to Complete Identification.

EX-PRESIDENT OF PANAMA RETURNS AS ENVOY TO U. S.

Dr. Belisario Porras.

Dr. Belisario Porras, until October president of the republic of Panama, and now minister of that country to the United States, has just arrived in Washington, where he formerly represented his country as minister. He succeeds Eusebio Morales, who will return to Panama as a member of the cabinet in the present administration.

Frank Culver, a farm hand, who picked up a Gazette idly cast aside in a railway passenger train coach, saw the description and immediately went to Beloit. After viewing the body, he told the Beloit police that it was that of his son, W. C. White, son of Lot White, a farmer living less than eight miles north of Spring Green, Wis., which is a short distance northwest from Madison in Sauk county.

Almost Certain.

Culver said he was almost sure that the body was that of his uncle, but he was not certain. He advised Sheriff Dell Chamberlain to have Lot White, the supposed father, come to Beloit. Deputy William Wogan was in communication with the chief of police at Muscoda, Wis., this morning and asked the latter to have White come to Janesville and accompany the sheriff. Officer Attorney G. C. Dill, of the Beloit police, D. Frank Bran to the Measham morgue at Beloit to determine if the murder victim is really his son.

Culver being brought into the case and his identification of the body, although still uncertain, until the elder White sees the body, reads his information. He is on his way north to Fond du Lac to visit a sister after working for some time on an Illinois farm.

He had not been there since some time during the summer, and as he had finished his farm work in Illinois he set out for north central Wisconsin with the idea of a visit and to get away from the weather if possible.

Reads the Paper.

A traveler this evening has paper as he left the train here and caught a car immediately for Beloit. He was shown the body at the morgue and after a moment made the statement that so far as he could determine it was West White, his uncle.

Tells of Scalp.

Culver came back to Janesville last night. At the jail he remembered that White had a scar on his right hand on the fleshly part just between and below the thumb and the index finger. He had forgotten to look for this when at Beloit, but Sheriff Chamberlain immediately called the morgue on tap and after an examination the scar was found.

The scar was easily discovered yesterday afternoon as the body was being viewed by hundreds of undertakers and physicians alike at that time and agreed that the shriveled skin was not a scar but just the reaction due to bringing the body into a warm room.

As a result of this opinion it was not mentioned in the detailed description of the body, the only detail that was omitted.

Culver said that the almost exact description and the fact that his uncle a month ago had told him that he was planning to go to Beloit and secure work at the Fairbanks-Morse machine shop made him stop to see the body.

This meeting, he said, was the first in twelve years and due to the long period of time he had not seen the man he would not positively state that he was White.

White, he said, was a jock of all trades and a master of none, and most important to the investigators working on the murder, he said White was a gambler and never worked except when he had to.

Active police investigators are holding to the opinion that the man was murdered after a row starting in a card game or either for the purpose of robbing the man had made a "cleaning" of cards.

Although the police are at loss to account for the presence of the man in the camp of George Brandt and Fred Slinger, the Beloit plasters, they hold to the opinion that the victim with the other men went there to have a ruder game of poker. Much gambling, it is well known, has been prevalent along the river between Beloit and Janesville, and speculation is that the crime was committed after trouble had arisen over the card game, although the robbery motive seems to be the more likely belief of the ten thousand dollars this found in the watch pocket of the man being overlooked as his assailant or assailants went through his other pockets. From the fact that the man's hands were not calloused the original belief that the man was a gambler is strengthened.

Camp Occupied.

The camp of the still unfinished mineral lodge is a large, well-constructed, single-story, of red brick, with a stone fireplace in the tent was a kota containing part of a gun and a rifle. A bed was missing and had been used but a short time previous.

Brandt and Slinger, the owners of the camp, were at Harrison, Ill., yesterday, filling a plastering contract.

HUGHES HOLDS RECORD

Republican Nominee Has Traveled 28,000 Miles into Thirty-three States in Four Campaign Journeys.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

New York, Nov. 4.—Charles E. Hughes finishes his presidential campaign here today in a whirlwind fashion. Instead of resting during the day, as he had intended to do, the nominee faced a program which calls for five speeches during the afternoon in addition to the rally tonight at Madison Square Garden.

Republican campaign managers have made elaborate preparations for the Madison Square meeting and the parade preceding it. They plan to have thousands in line, red fire, uniform parades, torchlights, and what they had characterized as a monster crowd, all decked out with lines of marchers as its spokes. These spokes will come together in Fifth Avenue and will be reviewed by Mr. Hughes, former President Taft, and other prominent Republicans.

London, Nov. 4.—Strong German forces last night entered British trenches near Guinchy, several miles east of Béthune, says the official statement today, but the invaders were immediately repelled. The Germans, yesterday, launched a counter-attack east of Guinchy, but the statement adds, but they suffered very heavy losses in proportion to their strength.

Repulse British Attack.

Berlin, Nov. 4.—Attacks on German position on Somme front yesterday northwest of Courcelette and in the Guedecourt-Lasbres sector, were repelled by the British.

Portions of the Russian main position on the Narayukava river south-east of Lemburg, were taken by storm yesterday by Austro-German troops, it is announced officially.

Russia Against Rumanians.

Rosco Height, southeast of Altschutz on the Rumanian-Russian front, has been occupied by the Rumanians, the war office announced.

In the region of Predeal, Austro-German forces, recaptured a position from the Rumanians.

Bucharest, Nov. 4.—The war office announced today that Rumanian troops have advanced to the west of Buzau stream, and also at table Butzi on the Transylvanian front.

West of the Jui the pursuit of the Austro-German forces continues.

There has been a bombardment all along the Danube.

Italian Offensive Gains.

Rome, Nov. 4.—Continuing their new offensive against the Austro-Hungarian forces in the Carso region, the Italians yesterday advanced in direction of the Wipptal river, for a distance of more than one kilometer. During the day the Italians took 550 prisoners.

On Serbian Front.

Salonika, Nov. 4.—A Serbian official statement today says:

"On Thursday there was reciprocal artillery and infantry firing. We have taken a number of German and Bulgarian prisoners."

French Statement.

Paris, Nov. 4.—There was intermittent cannonading along the Somme front and in the region of Fort Vaux, at Fort Duvalmont, north of Verdun, last night the war office announced today. Elsewhere conditions were quiet.

A British surgeon later proposed to transfer the wounded officer as totally invalided to Switzerland, and a Swiss commission of surgeons twice voted he was sent, but the British surgeon general, it is declared, vetoed the plan, and the officer was retained in England.

A British admiral declares that this was evidently due to guilty conscience on the part of the British, who wished to prevent the news from being made known.

HUGHES COMPLETES HIS CAMPAIGN TODAY IN WHIRLWIND STYLE

Gives Five Speeches in New York During Day, Closing with Big Rally in Madison Square Garden.

WASHINGTON DOUBTS THAT SUBSEA LINER WILL HAVE CONVOY

War Submarine as Convoy Would Sacrifice Latter's Immunities as Merchant Ship.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington, Nov. 4.—Reports that the Deutschland will be convoyed back to Germany by the war submarine U-57 have not been confirmed here officially, and in some quarters such a step is regarded as improbable, as it has been contended that a convoy ship takes on the warning of the submarine and cannot claim the immunities of a peaceful merchantman.

Whether the visit of a second war submarine might be taken by the state department as offering opportunity to request Germany not to conduct belligerent operations in the immediate neighborhood of the American coast, is not yet clear. The submarine, it is said, will be sent to the military prison in York castle, where the wounded officer, whose wounds still were open, and who was threatened with loss of the other eye, was sent in mid-December to England. With this account states.

MOLINE POLICE HUNT FOR TRAIN WRECKER

Moline, Ill., Nov. 4.—Local police and railroad detectives were searching for the person who threw a switch in the yards of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul road here Thursday night, and caused a wreck of the west bound passenger train No. 26, with the loss of one life and the escape of scores of men, women and passengers. Fireman Leo J. Miller of Chicago, was killed, and Engineer Fay Skase of Austin, Ill., is near death in a local hospital. Others seriously injured are, J. D. Dell, conductor, Maywood, Ill.; A. Guy, express messenger, Chicago; W. E. Grady, bagman, Elgin.

The farmer's family claim that Barr had not returned to his home since the day he left for Beloit. A man who was on the streets there is that he was seen in Elgin, with a rough-looking man, and another report is that he and the same person were seen on a Rockford bound interurban car that afternoon, October 11. Beloit is that the farmer's departure is not voluntary. He was dressed in his farm working clothes and told his family nothing of any plan to stay away longer than ordinary.

Washington, Nov. 4.—A campaign statement for the socialist party, filed with the clerk of the house today, showed contributions of $4,558 up to October 1, and expenditures of $18,483. The report showed that most of the expenditures had been in Oklahoma, Wisconsin, New York, Indiana, and Nevada. All contributions were in small sums.

INTERNATIONAL LINE FAVORED BY SHIPPERS

London, Nov. 4.—Representatives of thirteen of the trans-Atlantic steamship lines, in a meeting just held in London, listened with great attention to arguments in favor of the proposed International Commerce Commission by David Lubin of New York and California, who succeeded in getting through Congress resolutions endorsing the idea, which for its acceptance on the part of the shipping lines, was a matter of some difficulty.

Mr. Lubin has succeeded in interesting the big shipping men here in his plan, among them being Walter Runciman, president of the board of trade, a member of a well-known shipping family, and recently well called Sir Norman Hill, a great Liverpool shipping magnate. Among the lines represented were the American, Allen, Atlantic Transport, Associated Lines, Canadian Pacific, Cunard, Dominion, Furness Withy, Harrison, Leyland, White Star, and Wilson.

ROYAL NEIGHBORS'
DISTRICT MEETING
IS HELD ON FRIDAYMrs. Dora Courier of Evansville
Elected President of District—
School of Instruction Held.

A large representation and interesting sessions marked the district meeting held by the Royal Neighbors in the city on Friday. A dozen camps, were represented by official delegates and many visiting members were also present. Both St. Agnes, Milton Junction, and Evansville, Afton, Edgerton, Elkhorn, Grove and the two camps in the city belong to the district and joined in the meeting.

At the afternoon session a school of instruction was held which was presided over by Mrs. Eva Childs of Hanover, supreme manager of the national association. Questions were asked and answered by those concerned in the work.

An election of officers resulted in the following choice: president, Mrs. Dora Courier of Evansville; 1st vice president, Mrs. Kittle Schmidt of Edgerton; 2nd vice president, Mrs. Maude Lowry of Footville; 3rd vice president, Mrs. Anna Morse of Janesville; secretary and treasurer, Mrs. H. D. Murdoch of Milton Junction; auditor, Mrs. Augusta Townsend; Meggola; 3rd auditor, Mrs. Lizzie Williams; Edgerton.

A delicious supper was served at six o'clock in the east side Odd Fellows' hall where the members were invited. Luncheon was also served at noon to the delegates. Mrs. B. R. C. Jones was in charge of the catering.

In the evening degree work, as exemplified by the Footville camp, was held and also a good sized class of new members was taken in. A short address was given by Mrs. Eva Childs and also remarks by other visiting members.

Much credit for the successful program and the highly profitable meeting held here, is due the president of the district, Mrs. Maude Lowry of Footville, and Mrs. H. D. Murdoch of this city, who is secretary and treasurer, and who were the committee of arrangements having the affair in charge. Next year the convention will be held in Evansville by invitation of the camp of Royal Neighbors.

HOW WILSON MADE
MEAT PRICES JUMP

Accompanying Table Shows Great Increase in Meat Prices Since Start of Wilson Administration.

On last Tuesday the Gazette published a table comparing the prices of various staple vegetables and the table at this time with the prices paid before the Wilson administration, and after ten months of that administration, but before the war. Today the accompanying table shows the prices of common cuts of meat at these same times:

Average retail price of popular cash and charge butchers count house	Oct. 1912, before fare election of Wilson.	July 1913, after 7 months before war.	Oct. 1913, after 5 years of Wilson.	Chicago, Nov. 4.—A general decline of 26 cents in hog values compared with yesterday carried up to 55 cents light, as much as $1.25 lower than Oct. 25.
				Oct. 1912, before fare election of Wilson.	Oct. 1913, after 5 years of Wilson.
Sirloin	16½	18½	25-28
Porterhouse	17½	19½	29-35
Round steak	12½	13½	20-22
Roast beef	17½	18½	25-30
Roast lamb	15½	16½	25-30
Pork chops	12	15	20-22
Pork steak	12½	13½	18-22
Pork chops	12	15	18-22
Pork roast	10½	13	18-20
Veal roast	10½	13	18-20
Ham, sliced	17½	19½	30-35
Ham, whole	17	18½	25
Bacon	17½	19	25

Little explanation is necessary to show the tremendous increase. It is interesting, however, to note that the prices had a good start on their upward flight before the beginning of the war. The prices quoted for the present may be in excess of what is possible to buy meat for at some stores, but these prices are the average prices, those paid by the majority of the people, not only in Janesville but throughout all sections of the country.

Most of the advance can be attributed to the increase in the price of the raw materials, that is, of the hogs and cattle, which is far above that of four years ago. Then, too, some of the increase is due to greater expense of hauling, handling, packing, and marketing. The increase is distributed all along the line. But it all falls on the ultimate consumer and brings home to him with startling assurance the fact that though Woodrow Wilson was elected to reduce the cost of living, the facts show that he completely failed in this aim.

Flour Price Steady.

With the scaling of the wheat market, the price of flour has not advanced for two days, though it has not shown any signs of dropping.

KOREA GETTING RICH
FROM EXPORTS OF WAR;
SERIOUS BLOW LAST YEAR

Seoul, Korea, Nov. 4.—Official investigation shows that Korea has gradually recovered from the blow dealt her trade by the European war last year. The export of cow hides shows a great increase, due to the large demand for them by Japan to meet the large orders for army boots from Russia. In Korea some two million yen worth of boots and ammunition pouches were exported to Russia.

Korea of rice, lime, alum, gold ore, greatly increased. A decrease was noticed in imports.

articles imported markable falling
the figures for

unseed, tallow, cotton, coal and dye stuffs d. as generally seen in from Europe, a re-off being witnessed in what flour, condensed rye, alcohol, aniline and dynamite. Imports place of foreign articles, especially wheat flour, petroleum, iron nails and plate glass. The deduction is that Korea will more and more depend on Japan for her necessities.

In the last few years toward the spread of rye culture in the United States has led the department of agriculture to issue a treatise on the subject which has just been published and is being distributed to farmers asking for it. The United States last year produced its record crop of rye, harvesting 49,000,000 bushels. American experts point out that there are many excellent reasons for growing rye on the farm even though in most localities it is less profitable as a grain crop than wheat. Rye is harder and can therefore be grown as a winter grain in cold, exposed places. It will do well on sandy, poor, or acid land and may be sown later than wheat. It is attacked by fewer insects and uable straw, requires less fertilization and being earlier is better as a forage crop. In some sections production value per acre from rye actually exceeds that of wheat. This was true in the five-year period from 1910 to 1914 in South Carolina, Alabama, Texas, Minnesota, North Dakota and South Dakota.

"ACROSS the road we are to travel this next four years, even though we start right and move with prudence and courage, serious hazards are thrown like the breaks in a roadway made by a torrential rain. These all rise out of the war torrent which has overwhelmed Europe."

"WHEN this war began over a million American working men were seeking vainly for employment. When the war ends and the developed energies of a new Europe are thrown into commercial production, our nation will face a competition such as it never knew."

"ONE of two things must happen—either millions of men will be seeking work in vain or else there must be thought out in advance the problem of commercial organization as France and England and Germany are seeking to think out the problem today."

"EVERY one of these nations is preparing to defend its own market by a protective tariff."

"If we are to save our laboring men from a catastrophe we must plan a tariff protection along sound, just and economic lines. To this endeavor I pledge myself and the men who are to be my colleagues."

OUR SATURDAY NIGHT.

A man with a mania for answering advertisements learned that by sending $1 to a Yankee he could get a cure for drunkenness. It was to "take the pledge and keep it."

He sent 50 cents to find out how to raise turnips successfully. He found out: "Just take hold of the tops and lift."

He wished to marry, and sent stamps to a Chicago firm for information as to how to make an impression.
The answer was: "Sit down on a pan of dough."

He learned "how to double your money in six months," being advised to convert his money into bills and fold them.

He sent for "12 useful household articles," and got a package of needles.

He sent $1 to find out "how to get rich." "Work hard and never spend a cent."

His brother wrote to find out how to write without pen and ink. He was told to use a lead pencil.

He paid $1 to learn "how to live without work and was told on a postal card: "Fright for easy marks, as we do."—Finch.

These little paragraphs, which provide a smile, are not a work of fiction.
They are not creatures of imagination, because they are a part of current history, and the smooth promoter finds his "easy mark" victims in every community.

The racing spirit is not confined to the racing track or prize ring, and many good people who would be shocked if clasped with the fraternity of sports, are consumed by the same ambition to get something for nothing, and so the "gold brick" has long been recognized as an article of commerce.

There was a time when the Louisiana state lottery, and similar organizations, furnished an outlet for gambling ambition, but the government interfered and then established a lottery of its own and so, for many years, the public lands have been distributed by lottery drawing. The chance, which is about one in one hundred, for getting a farm for nothing, is so alluring that great crowds
from all parts of the country, attend these drawings and the money spent by disappointed victims represents more than the entire tract of land is worth.

The claim is made that this is the only fair method of distribution, but that is the thinnest kind of an argument. The system is on a par with the government's business methods.
The public domain belongs to the people and when any portion of it is sold it should be sold at market value and the proceeds deposited with the people's money in the public treasury, rather than given away or sold for a song to the holders of lucky numbers.

The gambling spirit is born in us but little effort is necessary to develop the habit. The average boy plays marbles for "keeps" and but for the element of chance the game would soon be discarded. When winning becomes a passion, as it sometimes does, the victim is consumed with an ambition to gratify it, and so the slot

machine and pool room offer attractions which are inviting and more demoralizing than the saloon.

If some of the energy expended by prohibition workers was directed to this sort of petty gambling, much good might be accomplished. These resorts are the primary department of service, and the boy in constant attendance becomes a saloon graduate as soon as age will permit. The Y. M. C.
A. and the church are doing their best to save this class of boys. It is to be regretted that the work and influence of both, could not be broadened, so that every boy in the city might be safely sheltered.

The argument is used that the city should come to the rescue, but we, the people, are the city and the morality of every community is never higher than the fountain head. The gamb-bling device, the Sunday theatre and the Sunday ball game exist because we, the people, demand them. This is just as true of the saloon, and these conditions will continue until the standard of morality is elevated.

It is said that the hope of the church is with the new generation, and in spite of all that may be accomplished by evangelical work, the fact remains that the great recruiting army is from the boys and girls of the Sunday schools.

What is true of the church is equally true of community life and good citizenship. There is but little hope of reaching the men of confirmed habits, and whether these habits are good or bad, they represent the law-making power, and personal liberty, which is a product of socialism, appeals to them. Not so the boy of today who will be the citizen of tomorrow.
He is in the making, and it is up to us to see that he is made right.

It requires an element of faith to be a gambler, and life is so much of a lottery that the good Lord endowed us with an ample supply of this sublime equipment. Faith is as common as the air we breathe, and without it life would be a dreary waste.

Faith represents ninety per cent of the capital of the country. Destroy confidence and panic speedily follows.
The seed time is an exhibition of Faith and the promise of harvest, while sometimes disappointing, seldom destroys confidence in the God of nature.

The boys of the land should be impressed with the fact that faith and honesty go hand in hand. Ability to perform comes through applied knowledge, but faith and honesty are fundamental. The God who permitted us to be created, intended us to have faith in ourselves, and when this fact is fully appreciated, and opportunities are improved, the ability to inspire confidence in others, is never lacking.
Faith without conceit is usually a winner, and well worth cultivating.

The man who engages in business always takes a gambler's chance.
Confidence inspires him to believe that he can win, but the long record of honest failures, which every year produces, shows that confidence was misplaced.

Sometimes his undoing results from ambition to make money faster than through the regular channels, and the gambling spirit induces him to take a flier in some gold brick scheme which promises large returns, and before he knows it he is the owner of a swamp farm in the South, or a block of stock in a salted mine in the West.

The founding of a home is a game of chance, pure and simple, and while many prizes are awarded in the drawing, there are also many blanks and many disappointments. The boy and girl who join hands at the altar, and face the journey ahead, have but little knowledge of each other or of the pathway which they are to travel.

If the sentiment which inspired the union develops a love which finds expression in sacrifice then the union is complete and the home becomes a prize winner, but if familiarity breeds contempt as is sometimes the case,
the drawing is worse than a blank,
and the home is a travesty.

Every name worthy of the name attempts to do its best for the children which come to bless it, yet in spite of all that loving care can accomplish, the fact has long been recognized that the launching of a life and preparing it for destiny, is a game of chance of serious significance.

An old man, long since dead, said
to his neighbor, who had a wayward son: "John, you have raised a fool."
And the quick reply came back: "That may be true, but you have the best of me, for you have raised three."

The home which is the sure winner is often a very modest home. The old couple which occupy it have trudged along together through the long and happy years. They think alike, they act alike, and often talk alike, for the traces of time are very uniform.

The memories of the busy years of active life, which come trooping back to them, are pleasant memories and often sacred. The hope which sustains them, as they drift down to the edge of time, is more than a gambler's hope, because it is inspired by a faith which time has never shaken.

This kind of a home approaches the ideal, and the world is better because there are so many of them.
They are the product of time, tested in the crucible of every day life with all its varied experiences, where the lottery has been changed to a certainty and where the prizes have been a part of the daily program.

Good Reason.
"Maria, you'll never be able to drive that nail with a flat-iron. For heaven's sakes use your head," admonished Mr.
Stubkins. And then he wondered why she would not speak to him the rest of the day.—Puck.

AND SO IT GOES
He wailed, "My world is full of woe, for my immortal soul,
And joys are far and few!
My life is full of bale," bawled he,
"I'll pick me out an apple tree
And hang my neck thereto!"

"My neighbor's life is smooth and quiet, but his is full of woe,
Few griefs beset him on his way,
He gets his coin with ease.
But I must plug till wan and pale
To gather in my meager kale
And earn my bread and cheese!"

To wall is easy, goodness knows,
If you don't all the woes
Which sets the flesh is heir,
Just envy all your neighbor's got,
Bemoan your own ill-fated lot,
And relish your despair!

Once upon a time, many years ago, there was a little boy who was the pampered darling of his doting kin.
It is related that at the age of four or five, we forget which, he stood in the midst of a circle of gushing kith. He had been asked all the questions that are commonly thought of when a child asks them, and when he failed to answer, from the boy's point of view, he was severely rebuked.

"What are you going to be when you grow up?" Roscoe asked a fat and unimaginative aunt.

"I am going to be a moving picture comedian," said the boy fingering his nose reflectively.

"But Roscoe," said the father ad-monishing the child gently with a small rap on the ear, "moving pictures have not yet been invented."
As indeed they had not. Not the least, and despite the earnest protests of all present, the little child held firmly to his aspiration. The parents, somewhat alarmed, called in an expert alienist and had Roscoe's cranial angle examined. The evidence showed unmistakably that the child was simple-minded. Moreover, he immediately walked in the most absurdly wobbling fashion to the pantry, where he seized a pie and hugged it violently at his baby sister.

Imitative Monkeys.

It is interesting to learn from experiments on monkeys at a zoo, that they, unlike dogs, cats, chickens and rats, but like human beings, do seem to be able to profit by observing one another's behavior. In a number of cases one monkey would pull out a plug or tug at a string, after he had seen a companion get food in this way, but not before.

TO GET FULL REPORT ON ELECTION RESULT

LEASED WIRE WILL SUPPLY GAZETTE WITH COMPLETE INFORMATION NEXT TUESDAY NIGHT.

EXPECT EARLY RETURN

Vote in Eastern States Will Probably Be Received Early in the Evening
—To Flash Bulletins on Screen.

WHISTLE WILL ANNOUNCE CANDIDATE IN LEAD AT HALF HOUR INTERVALS

At half hour intervals on election night the警笛 will sound at the State School for the Blind will announce to the people of Janesville and the surrounding country, the candidate who is in the lead, according to the Associated Press returns received at the Gazette office. One long blast of the警笛 will indicate that Hughes is leading; three short blasts will indicate Wilson is leading. When the final decision is reached two long blasts will indicate Hughes is elected and five short blasts will indicate a victory for Wilson.

Arrangements have been completed by the Gazette to give the residents of Janesville and vicinity the best possible service on the result of the national election of next Tuesday. The full report of the Associated Press, the biggest news gathering agency of the country, will be received throughout the night over a leased wire which runs directly to the Gazette office. The report will begin at 10 o'clock Tuesday evening and will continue until Wednesday morning. An experienced Western Union operator will receive the returns which insure prompt and accurate service.

In addition to the full Associated Press election report, the Gazette has made the usual arrangements for covering the vote in Janesville, Rock county and the state at large, and every effort will be made to give out the result with a minimum amount of delay. The returns will be flashed on the screen which will be hung opposite the Gazette office, and in addition the School for the Blind will switch on the news as announced to come down town to watch the bulletin.

The Gazette has secured equipment so that each bulletin that is flashed will appear in typewritten form which will allow a much fuller report and a quick service.

It is probable that there will be important news early in the evening. In New England the polls close as early as four o'clock and with the hour's difference in time, it will mean that the result from the eastern states will undoubtedly be accurately announced early in the evening. Returns from the midwest, west and east will of course be later, but it is safe to predict that it will be possible to predict the result before midnight.

The Gazette's reportorial force will be organized for efficient handling of the reports and returns. The telephones in the editorial room will be used entirely for receiving the results from the city, state and county. Persons who call for information are requested to call the business office, numbers 77-2 on either phone. The office will be closed except to the corps of workers. Persons who watch the bulletins on the screen will have as detailed information on the results from the city, state and county.

While the interest will center on the presidential contest, state issues will not be lost sight of and an effort will be made to give authentic information as to how the governorship and senatorial contests in Wisconsin are going. Every indication points to a busy night with persons interested in the election outcome assured of prompt service through the Gazette's arrangements for handling the reports.

Election returns will be shown at Corn Exchange Tuesday night.

MYERS VAUDEVILLE GOES OVER STRONG

A Pleasure to Sit Through This Week's Vaudeville Offering at the New Myers Theatre.

The manager of the New Myers Theatre, Jos. M. Bransky, is to be complimented on having secured such an excellent vaudeville booking as the one he offers the public this week. Collectively and individually the acts are good, the bill is balanced and diversified and the acts are pleasing.

The first number of the bill, Edna and Sydney Kellogg's musical act entitled "In the Music Room," proved to be most enjoyable little act. The Kelloggs produce music from the most unexpected sources; their act is lively and was well received.

Edna Dreon is a dainty miss who sings in a manner that is most enchanting. The costumes and scenic effects of the act are worthy of special mention. Miss Dreon has a delightful personality which she projected across the footlights in a manner that won her several encores and plenty of applause.

The headliner feature act of the bill, the Revue De Vogue, has never been equated for style and size on the vaudeville stage in this city. They carry enough scenic effects for a big show. Singing, dancing, music, pretty girls, dainty costumes, fill the act. It is a most pretentious act, somewhat new to be sure, but everyone seemed to like it.

"Just Polking Along" is the way Jack Polk polked. Jack is a good fellow who tells a lot of jokes, most of which are funny, and he put his act over, receiving plenty of applause and encores which entitle him to recognition. However, if Jack would leave out of his act entirely his act is long numbered, it would impair his act at least fifty percent. The song gets just a trifle good, to better with the audience and borders slightly on the vulgar. Aside from that Jack has an exceptionally good act.

The three Lordons, comedy sensational aerialists, close the bill in a whirlwind act that is full of fun and breath-taking aerial work. Better work of this kind has never been seen here.

A new feature this week was the news film produced by Selig-Tribune, which depicted incidents of world interest at the present time.

News Notes From Movieland

By DAISY DEAN.

"One of the great benefits which motion pictures will confer on the American public is the habit of seriousness."

Bertha Kalich, one of the foremost tragediennes of the American stage, believes this sincerely. The stage alone, from becoming a greater influence for higher art, is the eternal habit of humor, which audiences insist on practising, says the star. It is this deterrent which motion pictures will help to overcome.

"Often I think I cannot understand the American character," says Madame Kalich. "Though serious, it is half ashamed of its seriousness, and is afraid of being taken at a disadvantage. It has a sense of humor which frequently interferes with its best impulses, atrophies, limits and impedes."

Madame Kalich believes that dramatic art should dig beneath the surface. It should not necessarily seek the unusual and the accidental, but it should point out the deeper meaning of the ordinary human existence. To

GREAT PLAY RETURNS TO MILWAUKEE

EDNA FENTON AS LOVE IN "EXPERIENCE"

In response to hundreds and hundreds of requests that were so insistent as to become a command, Manager Sherman Brown of the Davidson Theatre, Milwaukee, announces he has secured a return engagement of "Experience," George V. Hobart's modern, morality, comedy drama of today, called by the critics The Most Wonderful Play in America. The engagement commences Sunday night, November 5th. There will be a special bargain matinee Election Day, Tuesday, November 7th, and the regular bargain matinees Wednesday, and the usual matinee Saturday afternoon. Out of town patrons are advised to make early reservation of seats either by mail or long distance telephone, Grand 899, Milwaukee.

This return engagement will be of unusual importance, as Mr. Brown has secured by special arrangements with William Elliott, F. Ray Comstock and Morris Gest, the producers of "Experience," the famous New York-Boston "Experience" organization, with a cast of eighty-two notable players. The beauty of the ladies of this company is said by the critics to have set a new standard of beautiful girlhood for the stage. The New York-Boston company comes to Milwaukee direct from nine months in New York and five months in Boston, and is said by the dramatic writers to be the greatest "Experience" organization ever assembled.

"Experience" is endorsed by the clergy of all creeds and denominations.

In ten brilliant and spectacular scenes, it vividly tells the love story of Youth—the average young man of today—and the temptations he met when he went out into the great world to seek fame and fortune.

WOMAN'S PAGE

Heart and Home Problems

By Mrs. Elizabeth Thompson
Letters may be addressed to Mrs. Thompson, in care of The Gazette.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) We are six girls between the ages of fifteen and seventeen, who live in a small country town. What can we do to liven things up a bit? We are tired of going home, studying, and going to bed at nine o'clock every night. Would it be all right for us to go roller skating and walking or riding with the boys? There are a bunch of us who always go together. Our school is very stale. What can we do to start school activities? Please suggest a number of ways in which we can have a good time and heaps of fun while we are in this school and still retain our good reputations.

(2) Don't you think it is all right for boys and girls to go together some if they are sensible about it?

THANK YOU.

(1) You must have an abundance of vitality and imagination to liven things up. I would advise nothing more than the forming of a sewing club. When you learn to enjoy the pictures that you have you will find that they increase, and the dull little town is just as enjoyable after all as any other place.

Girls between the ages of fifteen and seventeen should go to bed at 9 o'clock. They are too young to attend roller rinks, walk and go auto riding with boys after 9 o'clock.

If you do your part to make school parties a success, you will find that you enjoy them. There is nothing more enjoyable than hard work preparing for a party. It is a lot more fun than merely going. Take an interest in the school activities in all lines. Go to athletic contests when you have them and support your side with your enthusiasm.

SIDE TALKS

By RUTH CAMERON

SHE DIDN'T APOLOGIZE.

The other afternoon when I called on a friend of mine she answered the door herself in a very short skirt and a brown flannel shirt.

While she is a woman whom I greatly admire, we are not intimate friends, and I had with me a guest who is a stranger to my hostess.

It was a situation which would have embarrassed the ordinary woman. Not so this woman. She did not look flushed or annoyed. She did not break into apologies.

She received us cordially and led us into her living room, and then, at her leisure, explained (not apologized) that she had been working in her garden.

She Didn't Say "It's the Maid's Day Out."

She keeps a maid who usually answers the door, but she did not think it necessary to establish his fact by explaining that it was the maid's day out.

Don't you admire that woman?

I do. She had what I consider one of the finest of all qualities—true dignity.

That is the sort of dignity that made Lincoln capable of being entirely unembarrassed when his cabin boy found him playing leap-frog with his son.

They Had Blacked The Prime Minister's Face.

HEALTH TALKS

By WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

THE MOST SERIOUS MISTAKE.

ought to go west and see what it leads to.

Answering the question, it depends upon individual circumstances. In general way, ordinary medical diet is best. No special efforts to force down vast quantities of eggs or milk that idea has been found wanting—but a reasonable selection of the plain foods of the table. Possibly the failure to regain weight is due to insufficient rest. If fever is present exercise is generally harmful, even in small doses. But general advice will never help you in this, but the individual physician of an expert will guide you to recovery.

Forget what that dreamy doctor back east told you, and employ a disenchanted Colorado physician. You are committing the most serious mistake a tuberculosis sufferer can commit. The indispensable requirements for the cure of tuberculosis are these: 1. The regulation of the air and care of a physician. 2. The open air. 3. Rest and graded exercise determined by the activity of the disease. 4. Plain food in reasonable variety, well cooked and attractively served. And 5. Optimism—which brings you back to requirement No. 1 again.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Reduced to Plain Language. How can I reduce my weight without dieting or exercise? Is it safe to reduce by wearing rubber garments?

ANSWER.—By fasting or by taking the Karel diet one, two, three or four days each week—absolutely nothing more than a glassful (six ounces) of skimmed milk, sipped slowly, warm or cold, at 8, 12, 4 and 8 o'clock each day. There is no danger in reducing by wearing girdles, bathing caps, garters and the like, unless it is slow. Other garments alleged to reduce, reduce the pocketbook.

Our Old Friend Going Round Again.

I have been informed that if a mother smokes a cigarette when nursing a baby it will give colic to the baby. Would you advise me to try it?

ANSWER.—Present our compliments to your informant, the fishwife, and give the baby a little catnip tea instead. It is safer.

Household Hints

BREADS WITH CORN MEAL.

As cold weather approaches, it is desirable to use more breads made from corn meal, rye and graham flour.

Indian Bread.—One pint sweet milk, one tablespoonful molasses, a little salt, one egg, one cup of wheat flour put in two of Indian (corn) meal until as thick as pound cake. Turn into well-greased tins and set in a warm place to rise over night. Then set in a slow oven to bake about three-fourths of an hour.

Indian Bread.—One pint corn meal, pour over it one pint boiling water, one teaspoon molasses, graham flour enough to make a stiff batter, two eggs, one teaspoon soda, dissolved in a little boiling water; steam three hours over a pot of hot water. Keep the water boiling all the time.

Indian Bread.—Four cups corn meal, three cups rice, one cup molasses, one large teaspoon soda, dissolved in warm water. Mix very thin, steam three hours, and bake half hour.

PIES.

Pie Crust.—One shell and one pie with shell and top—both small).—One half pint lard or lard substitute, one pint flour, one teaspoon salt. Rub thoroughly together and add one-half cup water. Mix and roll.

Cream Pie.—For small pie, use two and one-half handfuls of flour. Put this on raw dough crust. Rub two and one-half tablespoons granulated sugar with flour. Add slowly about one-half pint milk. When thoroughly mixed place three small dots of butter on top.

Lemon Pie.—Have ready the pastry shell. Dissolve one tablespoon cornstarch in a little cold water, pour over it one teaspoon boiling water (stir all the time), add tablespoon butter and small cup sugar. Cook a few minutes longer. Set on back of range and add grated rind of one lemon. Stir well and pour in crust. Set in oven few minutes with door open.

SECOND WIFE.

Your jealousy is reasonable. One never loves two people in the same way, and so believe that it is possible for your husband to be in memory of his former wife and you too. He is very tactless to talk about her and should not have her pictures on the wall. Perhaps if you told him how you feel he would show more tact.

CAKES.

Spice Chocolate Cake.—One cup sugar, one egg, one teaspoon lard, two teaspoons cocoa, one-half cup milk, one and one-third cups flour, two and one-half teaspoons baking powder, one-fourth teaspoon salt, one-half teaspoon cinnamon. Put sugar, butter, lard and egg together. Beat well. Then add flour, salt, baking powder, and cinnamon. Bake fifteen minutes. Frost for spice chocolate cake: One-fourth pound powdered sugar, one teaspoon butter, two teaspoons cocoa, about two tablespoons cold coffee, or enough to hold together. No boiling; just mix all together.

Orange Coffee Fruit Cake.—One cup brown sugar, one cup raisins, one cup molasses, one cup lard or butter, one scant teaspoon cloves, one teaspoon cinnamon, one teaspoon soda (in molasses), one and one-half cups cold coffee, one small teaspoon salt, flour to suit. Bake slowly one hour. This cake one must try a sample to find how much flour to use. An excellent cake if made with no eggless cake.

Tea Cakes.—One cup brown sugar, one cup sugar, one-half cup lard, one teaspoon cinnamon, one cup currants (or one cup sherry jam). Roll all together a few minutes, let cool; when lukewarm add two cups flour sifted with one teaspoon baking soda. Bake in loaf. This will keep moist for weeks. You can add raisins and citron or candied orange peel, and it is just fine.

THINGS WORTH KNOWING.

To make a white of egg go twice as far beat the egg as usual, first adding a pinch of salt and one tablespoon of water; then, when light, add one to two tablespoons of sugar. Have ready a kettle of boiling water and drop this in until set. Will be puffed up twice as much and can be spread twice as far.

To Polish Stoves.—Take any good stove polish, dissolve it in gasoline. Don't have the stove warm. Rub till dry, with a cloth or brush. If stove is rusty, wash with vinegar before polishing.

True Dignity and False Dignity are as far apart as the poles.

True Dignity is a quality of the soul, not of the spine.

True Dignity is Rooted in The Soul.

It doesn't consist in keeping your back like a ramrod and your manner like an iceberg.

It consists, rather, in independence of soul.

True Dignity never fails to be because it cannot be undignified. It dignifies all that it does.

False Dignity is as common as true dignity is uncommon.

True Dignity is often found in high places because it frequently carries its possessors into the presence of force, but it is also found in lowly places, for, to quote Aristotle, "Dignity consists not in possessing honors, but the consciousness that we deserve them."

MRS. WILSON ENJOYS CAMPAIGNING

Mrs. Wilson appears to be thoroughly enjoying the excitement of the campaign. She has accompanied the president on his speech-making trips about the country, and always seems in happy mood. The picture was made in Cincinnati, on the occasion of the president's recent visit to that city.

The Highflyers

By MARY LEONARD

"Marge, it's time to get up," Tom Gerard gently shook his wife's shoulder.

"What's the matter?" Marjory sat up in bed with startled expression, rubbing her sleepless eyes.

"Get up, Puss." Tom planted a kiss on the sleepy lids. "I'll put the teakettle on before I bathe and by the time you are dressed, you will be boiling."

Tom was evidently refreshed with his short hours of sleep. Marjory lay down again and drew the covering around her throat as if she were shivering.

"None of that, my girl," Tom was cheerful, but determined. He gave the bed clothes a vigorous jerk that would have a tendency to put slumber to flight.

"Now, get up," he called as his bathrobe disappeared from view through the doorway.

Marjory again drew the bed covering over her and punched her pillow viciously before settling her sour-looking face into it. When Tom returned she was apparently peacefully sleeping.

"I'll be late at the office if you don't move."

"I think you will if you spend your time talking to me instead of getting ready to go," snapped his wife.

"I'm not in a hurry to get up. You haven't gotten breakfast once since we were married."

"Since you ask my intentions, I propose to remain in bed. I'm sleepy. We were up half the night."

Marjory closed her eyes.

"I was awake as late as you were; besides you can go back to bed again if you are so worn out."

The tone flew open angrily.

"I'll be late at the office if you don't move."

"I think you will if you spend your time talking to me instead of getting ready to go," snapped his wife.

was sarcastic.

"I can't sleep after I am once awake," replied the girl, simulating drowsiness.

"Well, spend your time cultivating the deepest virtues; you possess few enough of them," snapped Tom. "If you can't sleep after you are waked up, I will see that you are awake all right."

He seized her arms and began gently to pull her out of bed.

"Let me alone!" she cried fiercely.

"I suppose you think this is a joke, but it is in very bad taste."

She jerked away from him.

"You are a wakeman. I think this is anything but a joke."

Tom rose from the bed and began to get into his clothes. Marjory took sly peeps at him out of the corner of her eye.

He looked very angry and determined. Suddenly he turned toward her and said:

"Once more I ask you to do what every other wife does without asking me. I ask you to prepare one meal a day that we can eat alone together.

"Give me a glimpse of what a home might be. We might just as well be living in a hotel."

There was no answer from the relaxed figure in the bed.

"I want you to know that if you require this very reasonable request you will like to forget it."

Tom waited for a minute for a reply, then turned toward the glass and grappled with his collar.

Marjory watched his reflection in the glass through half shut eyes. His head was thrown back and he made horrible faces as if in torture.

She almost laughed aloud. The collar was still around her neck and she snatched the ends of his four-in-hand and drew up the knot with a snap as if he were choking an enemy.

"I am glad it is on his neck, not mine," snickered Marjory under her breath.

Tom seized his hat and umbrella.

It was raining dismally and left the place in a dark world. His wife followed him to the click of the outside door and with sudden relenting sprang out of bed and ran to call her husband. The top of the elevator was just disappearing as she peeped through the crack in the door.

She crawled back into bed and lay thinking with growing uneasiness till about ten o'clock, when she rose and put on more water for coffee. The teakettle had boiled dry.

Baltimore & Ohio Road Buys 3,000 New Box Cars

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 4.—The Baltimore & Ohio Railroad company has placed an order for 3,000 box cars supplementing a contract for 1,000 placed a short time ago. It was announced today.

The ceremony today was performed in the noted tanpore hall room of the Draper residence on Farragut Square. Cardinal Gibbons officiated.

The wedding was the culmination of a childhood romance, begun in England, where the Boncompagni boys were attending Oxford. Later, when Miss Draper's father occupied the post of ambassador to the United States, the prince, who had been a student at Oxford, was invited to the United States and followed early this month by the announcement of the engagement.

MILWAUKEE CORRESPONDENT CLAIMS WILSON, LA FOLLETTE AND PHILIPP WILL CARRY THE STATE.

Intense Interest Throughout the State May Bring Out 500,000 Voters Next Tuesday, Ellis Usher Insists.

(UPI) Ellis B. Usher.)

Milwaukee, Nov. 4.—It is "all over but the shouting." If I could believe all I hear of Wisconsin I would expect to see a majority for Wilson and that would carry Wolfe to the senate and give the Democratic state ticket a possible chance to creep through a crack and win. But after from National Committee Martin, Senator Huston, and W. F. Wolfe, the state campaigners have not taken enough about the things they have "pussy-footed" and made the same mistake Hughes has made. The presidential question will be settled for four years next Tuesday, but little will be done to define party lines for there are a great many states where party lines have no boundaries and Wisconsin is one of them. How the American manufacturers have abandoned Hughes to the inevitable, and neither the Democratic nor the Republican national committee has done anything against La Follette. In my letter of September 30 I said of Wisconsin: "The program

TO EVERY TRUE AMERICAN

Woodrow Wilson's fight is your fight.

He has put equal justice above special privilege, human rights above property rights, national honor above organized greed, and Democracy for all.

The Child Labor Law, the Federal Reserve act, the Clayton Anti-Trust Law, Workmen's Compensation, Rural Credits, the Shipping Bill, the Federal Trade Commission, the Seamen's act, the Tariff Commission, and the Agricultural Extension act may well stand as the ten commandments of America; his International peace proclaim to the world America's recovery of the ancient faith, America's renewed devotion to Democratic ideals. . . . Woodrow Wilson has given you prosperity with justice.

How much does it mean to you that business is no longer at the mercy of panderers of credit and enterprise have been released from captivity, that the standards of America are now the standards of civilization, and that the heart of the land is not torn by wailing of widows and orphans, the slow shuddering of the blind and the maimed?

America today is no less a battle ground than 1776 and 1861, and Woodrow Wilson is no less the champion of liberty than Washington and Lincoln.

What one of you would not fight to defend your home and your country against foreign foes? Fight, then, against enemies within that hold greater menace than any foe without.

Do not serve notice upon all future presidents that faithful service is folly, since the electorate is without gratitude, interest and intelligence.

Woodrow Wilson has kept you out of war and given you peace with honor.

Vote then, to re-elect Woodrow Wilson President of the United States.

CHAS. H. OLIVER, C. D. McCARTHY, R. H. GOODWIN,
R. M. RICHMOND, DAN ROGERS, JOHN SHERMAN,
W. W. DALTON, F. C. BURRIT, GEO. H. ESSER, HENRY MOORHENPAH, J. A. DENNING, D. E. THORPE, ALEX PAUL, B. C. WILLSON.

That might elect them all. Some of my most dependable information predicts a "Wilson sky burst."

Picks Berger to Win. This city is going strong for Wilson, and Cary for congress, and probably be defeated by Szczerbinski, a Milwaukeean. Both of good character and ability. The chance is that Victor Berger will beat Stafford. So far as I can learn these are the two congressmen among our present poor who are likely to get "what's coming to them."

In 1912 Mr. Wilson had a majority in 14 and a plurality in 20 counties of Wisconsin. The 14 counties in which he had a majority represent 923,388 of the 2,333,000 people of the state, really a greater number, for these are the census figures of 1910 and our cities have since been growing faster than the rural sections of the state. In these counties there are the cities of Fond du Lac, La Crosse, Milwaukee, Manitowoc and Oconomowoc, and there are a number of the smaller cities in the other counties that Wilson carried.

The eminent philosopher, Theodore Ribot, now nearing his seventy-seventh birthday, one of the deans of the Institute, replies: "During the first four months of the war I was unable to do anything but to pray and to reflect upon the assumption that the German-American Alliance is for Hughes, and Wilson will have a much bigger vote here than four years ago."

Confident of Big Vote.

There are 2,230 precincts in this state and four years ago the average total vote cast was less than 172 to the precinct. A 20 per cent increase would be only 45 votes a precinct and only an increase over the total vote of 1908. Four years ago, Indians voted to an intense interest in every part of the state, quiet but full of determination. Some people are inclined to think my last week's estimate of a possible 500,000 votes in Wisconsin next Tuesday is wild. They forget that Wisconsin cast more votes twenty years ago than it has cast most of the time since and that in 1908, 44,442 votes were polled.

There is nothing improbable about the estimate. The natural increase in the last six years ought to add over 50,000, and an increase of 20 votes to a precinct, in the interest shown, would add another 45,000 votes. I believe the voters will be at the polls this year. They will not be too soon for me.

Endorses Lardner Done.

Ring Lardner of the Chicago Tribune advises the Illinois football team not to go to Minneapolis this Saturday, because he says it won't be a football game when Minnesota starts to go.

He is about right, and that is the way it will be. The two teams are up to scratch, but the season has been up and down with Wisconsin and Northwestern running neck and neck for second place. I am convinced.

In the east Harvard is looking up considerably, as is Yale's, while Princeton, although she's won so far, hasn't much chance for a championship on the strength of both Penn, Cornell and Syracuse, all possibilities in the early season, have faded.

CHAPTER I.

Under Fire.

In its spring freshness the usual dreary brown of the Montana range was tempered with a pleasant green. But the midday sun was blisteringly hot, and the rider turned his eyes to the snowy crests of the Little Paw mountains. The nearest of the rugged pine-clad spurs were now only four or five miles away. He had almost reached the reservation. Wolf river marked the boundary. The rangy stride of his thoroughbred mare was as easy and unfeeling as when she had borne him away from the half-dozen shacks of the nearest "town" on the rail road. But as they began to top the rise, he drove her down to her rapid walk, and took out his field-glasses.

Hastily had he focused the powerful little binoculars when from across the coulee, a short distance downstream, came the crack of a high-power rifle. A moment later the shot was followed by three deeper reports from upstream. The first shot was smokeless. Not so the others. The bluish smoke puffs of their charges of black powder directed the gaze of the rider to the dozen or more swarthy, half-naked Indians crouching near the top of the rocky bank, across from the nearby butte. All were warily peering down the coulee.

The road ran obliquely across the narrow valley to a side gulley that gashed the far bank a hundred yards or so downstream. Back in the shelter of this gulley four or five ponies stood grouped before a buckboard. Above them a man was crouched under the edge of the bank. Another man lay behind a small bush, just outside the entrance of the gulley. A woman in civilized dress was coming around from the rear of the buckboard. The erect figure of the rider tensed with quick decision. He wheeled his mare out of the road, to cut down the sharp slope directly towards the Indians. His voice rang across the coulee with the clearness of a bugle call: "Ho, there! Cease firing!"

At his command the Indians twisted about to glare at him in a half panic. Three or four started to slink away. But one swung his rifle around and fired. The bullet grazed the rider's coat collar. He hung up his right hand, palm outward. The reply to the peace sign was a second bullet, that cut the crown of his campaign hat.

Two bullets were enough to change the tactics of the rider. At a word from him and a touch of the rein, his mare swerved and plunged obliquely down the side of the coulee. The Indian

"Ho, there! Cease firing!"

ians burst into exultant yells, and several opened fire on the fugitive as the mare leaped down to the coulee and dashed across the bottom toward the gulley.

Urged on by voice and spurless heel, the mare sprang over the sandy level over remarkable peanry. Her eyes were like blue-black diamonds. An almost imperceptible film of old-gold enriched the cream and rose of her cheeks. Her jet-black hair was of French fineness. The curve of her rather large mouth was perfect.

But the red lips were again parting in a disdaining smile. She replied without seeking to conceal her scorn: "If you're afraid they'll take the butte, you might get away by bolting down the coulee. We'll do what we can to draw their fire."

"You will?" he said. "Thank you for your suggestion. I believe I'll follow it. Kindly step aside."

She stood motionless, her eyes glittering with cold contempt of his cowardice. Unchecked by the look, he leaned forward in the saddle. The mare leaped away like a startled deer. Once clear of the gulley she swerved sharply and raced away down the coulee. The flight was so unexpected, so daring and so swift that the fugitive had been borne a good fifty yards down along the foot of the near slope before the Indians opened fire on him.

The girl had crept forward and crouched in the entrance of the gulley to peer after him.

"The coward!" she cried. "The coward! I hope they get him!"

But before one of the many bullets could find the leaping, racing mare, and rider shot out of sight behind a clump of willows. At once the firing ceased.

The blond young man under the bush glanced around at the girl and called jeeringly: "I say, Murie, how's that for a bobtail visit? Took him for a gentleman?"

"Gentleman? That's the word," she mocked. "Conducit becoming an officer and gentleman."

"Officer?" he repeated. "You don't mean to say—"

"Yes," she asserted. "He's an army officer. I could see it sticking out all over him."

The man stared at her in blank amazement, but suddenly bethought himself to roll over and send a bullet plugging up the coulee.

The girl continued to peer down the river bottom. After several moments more and rider dashed into view, racing directly across the coulee. Though the Indians at once opened fire, the mare had skimmed over the level and up into a gulley in the far bank before they could get the range.

Hopeful that one or more of the enemy might expose themselves during the excitement, the young man behind the bush had not looked around. As the firing ceased, he called scoffingly: "How about the strategic retreat? Does General Fabius make his getaway without casualties?"

"Le bon Dieu be praised! He has escaped," the girl mocked in turn. "We are saved. In a week or ten days he will return to the rescue with three troops of cavalry."

"If those sneaking coyotes have sent a delegation around to climb the butte from the upside, we'll get ours before Charlie can come back with the police," grumbled the young man.

"Yes. Our military expert saw that at once. He said this position would become untenable."

"So he ran leaving a woman in the lurch—the skunk!"

"Well, he has gone. You'd better be thinking how to get us out of the hole you've got us into," suggested the girl.

"All I did was to knock up the dust in front of them. The way they came back at me proves they really were scheming to get us."

"Much you know about it," scoffed the girl. "Just because some of the tribe are feeling ugly is no sign that—"

"How about the murder of Nogen?"

"Well, how? You and Charlie both say there was only the one buck who did the shooting. No; if this bunch had been planning to get us, they'd have been out of sight under the edge of the bank or over on the butte where we first came along."

"Have it your own way—only toss me a bottle of beer, that's a good girl I'm dry as a fish."

Recklessly he sat up and looked at her, his small mouth curving in a smile under the neat mustache. A bullet whizzed close over his head. "There they've spotted your position. Come away!" Her voice quivered with concern for him.

The Idyl of Twin Fires

I forgot my man back in my enthusiasm, and later, when the apples were gathered, the potatoes dug, the beets and carrots in the root cellar, our own sweet cider foamed in a glass pitcher on our table, and the first snow spits of December whistled across the fields, we put a little long manure over the iris and other bulbs, and pine boughs over the remaining perennials, and wrapped the ramblers in straw, with almost as much laughing tenderness as you would put a child to bed.

The cows were back in the stable, and Mike had revised his opinion of cork-asphalt doors when he realized the ease of cleaning with a hose; the potatoes and apples and onions and beets and carrots for our family use were stored in barrels and bins in the cellar, or spread on shelves, or buried in sand. The vegetable garden was newly plowed, and manure spread on the hayfield. Antony and Cleopatra had been captured and brought into the dining room, where they were to spend the winter in a glass bowl. Epletus and Luella and Gladys and Gaynor had all burrowed out of sight into the ground. The pageant of autumn on our hills was over, only an amethyst haze succeeding at sunset time. Wood fires sparkled in our twin hearths. The summer residents had departed. Our first Thanksgiving turkey had been eaten, though a great stone crock of Mrs. Pillig's incomparable mincemeat still yielded up its treasures for amateur pies.

"And now," said Stella. "I'm going to find out at last what a country winter is like!"

"And your friends are pitying you down in town," said I. "Don't you want to go back to them till spring?"

Stella looked at the fires, she looked out over the bare garden and the plowed fields to the dun hillsides, she listened a moment to the whistle of the bleak December wind, she looked at me.

In her eyes I read her answer.

CHAPTER XVIII.

Horas Non Numero Nisi Serenas.

But this story is, after all, an idyl, and the idyl is drawing to its close. Even as the Old Three Decker carried tired people to the Islands of the Blest, my little tale can only end with "and they lived happy ever after."

That second summer at Twin Fires, of course, showed us many things yet to be done. Neither Rome nor the humblest garden was ever built in a day. Our ramblers did their duty well, but the grape arbor and the pergola would not be covered properly in a season. There were holes in the flower beds to be filled by annuals, and mistakes made in succession, so that July found us with many patches destitute of any bloom. Out in the vegetable area there were first cutworms and then drought and potato blight to be contended with. In our ignorance we neglected to watch the hollyhocks for red rust till suddenly whole plants began to die, and we had to spray madly with bordeaux and pull off a great heap of infected leaves, to save any blooms at all. There were clearings to be made in the pines for fern spots, and constant work to be done about the pool to keep the wild bushes from coming back. There were chickens to be looked after now, also, and new responsibilities in the village for both of us. We had neither attempted nor desired to avoid our full share of civic work. We lived a busy life, with not an hour in the day idle, and few hours in the evening. We lived so full a life, indeed, that it was only by preserving an absolute routine for my own bread-winning labors, from 8 a. m. till one, that I was able to resist the siren call of farm and garden, and get my daily stint accomplished.

Above all, we had the perpetual incentive of gardening to keep our eyes toward the future. A true garden, like a life well lived, is forever becoming, forever in process, forever leading on toward new goals. Life, indeed, goes hand in hand with your garden, and never a fair thought but you write it in flowers, never a beautiful

CHAPTER THREE.

The battle of Chevry Hill. Colonel Depaure looked at his watch. It was five o'clock. In the last long red streaks betokened the rising sun.

"Eight minutes left," he muttered. Then he turned and faced the members of his staff, who were grouped behind him. "Everything has been attended to, has it not?" he asked, of no one in particular.

All of the staff nodded in assent. The colonel looked serious. "In an hour our troops should be in possession of Chevry Hill!" he said.

"The enemy will be completely surprised," remarked an officer.

"The capture

of Chevry Hill should lead to a concentration of German troops near the place, and possibly an attack to recapture it.

Depaure went on rapidly. "Then Depaure went on rapidly. Then we should be able to take Rechteau Plain.

It had been at his watch again.

In that instant it would be sunrise. And sunrise was the signal for the French assault on Chevry Hill.

At that moment the door opened.

"The car is ready, sir," announced an orderly.

Silently, Depaure followed the man. Out stepped a great powerful motor car.

Even as the colonel took his seat there came a great roar.

Explosion after explosion rent the air. The French

artillery had opened fire and the bat-

"The colonel's motor car shot away at a dizzy speed. A half hour later it came to a stop on a little promontory, which overlooked the official could overlook Chateau Plain,

the probable field of the battle. Hardly had they reached their destination

when men arrived to set up the field telegraph and telephone.

The orders of Major Le Marchais,

in command of the artillery, stated that the final bombardment of the fortifications on Chevry Hill should commence at sunrise and continue for forty-five minutes. He was carrying them out to the letter. The big guns were being fired as fast as they could be reloaded.

Colonel Depaure watched the scene.

"The Germans have now taken Chevry Hill," he said at length.

"The victory is assured."

Nearly five minutes passed before a reply to the furious onslaught came from German guns. Then the guns

on the hill roared forth, and a magnificent artillery duel was in progress.

It was plain from the first that the advantage was with the French. Depaure watched the proceedings intentively. They have little ammunition left, and are excitingly. Their batteries will be silenced in twenty minutes."

As the time went on the truth of his statement was made manifest. The German fire slackened, as gun after gun was forced to stop from lack of powder. It was plain that the French still Depaure was designed with the course of events.

"The French will fly from the peak of Chevry Hill in half an hour,"

he cried.

But Depaure had reckoned without his host. The German commander realized that he had been surprised and knew that the moment of an-attack he knew that his men would be forced to retreat. So he determined on a bold stroke. Orders flew from the German field headquarters. Three minutes later the German artillery fire stopped as suddenly as it had begun.

Depaure misread this move on the part of the enemy. He thought that the German gunners were bringing fire directly instead of from orders from the operator. He dictated rapidly an order to Major Le Marchais—"Continue the bombardment for five minutes. If no further reply is received from the Germans, silence the guns and order an advance."

"An unsupported infantry attack,"

burst from the lips of Depaure and

"Guns will be useless," cried

the colonel. "They can do nothing at close quarters."

Then came a dispatch from the officer in charge of the French Infantry. De Paure's hands

shook as he read it. "Our infantry

forces number all told, twelve thousand. From appearances, the Germans have as many, or more. What shall I do?"

The colonel dictated savagely to the operator. "Send every available man to the front at once. It is imperative that the charge be broken. Give orders to stop only when they have gained the top of Chevry Hill."

The French are dazed at the assault. D'Armillay missed in his ear.

The Taiton forces have every advantage. It will be a Pyrrhic victory at all costs," remarked Depaure grimly.

CHAPTER FOUR.

Because of Marksmanship.

At last the French troops were put in motion. They advanced in three well formed divisions. Eight thousand men comprised the center, and there were two thousand men for advantage. They marched forward steadily

as the rapidly approaching

German column.

When the two armies came together

in the middle of Chateau Plain, Colonel Depaure turned his eyes away. The slaughter was terrible in the hand to hand conflict that followed. In such battle was shows itself in all its hideous reality. For nearly an hour the result was in doubt. Then the French advanced in numbers, began to tell.

Not only the German troops were forced back. In half an hour a general retreat was ordered. The French troops were quick to press

their advantage.

"The battle seems to be coming this way," cried out a member of Depaure's staff. "Perhaps it would be better to select another location."

As the colonel, a German soldier da-tailed himself from the retreating

German column, now scarcely half a mile away. He carried a rifle in one hand. His other had been carried away by a French ball. This man paused a moment and then started toward the position which Colonel

Depaure and his staff had selected to view the battle, on a dead run.

"Once more become the target for

Yale, Harvard and Princeton Lead On Gridiron In the East

Yale, Harvard and Princeton are not the only colleges in the east which have football teams, even if the majority of experts the country over do apparently have that opinion. Cornell, Brown, Colgate and several other colleges are forever butting into the truimvirate and messin' up the works.

But Yale, Harvard and Princeton evidently have good football teams and they constitute the par excellence of the sport around these parts. The annual clashes of the teams are red letter days on the sports calendar and from the time the final games ring the curtain down football fans ring the time of the year with a glow.

Harriet has held the upper hand for several years largely through the expert advice of one Percy Haughton, who has put more life and fire and pep into the Crimson eleven than it ever believed it could possess. But this year seems to be the start of an ascendant of the stars at Princeton and Yale. Yale is getting on to tute had the right of way and in no way affected the play.

Edad Y. M. C. A. director has now settled the much disputed question once and for all. He says it is 30 to 7, and that Birch has football, he knows just what he is talking about. The disputed goal after the final touchdown counted, even though there were twelve Badgers on the field.

Birch ruled that an incoming substi-trate which it is said calls for a salary of $15,000, Haughton said he would skin alive any man who said that finances would stand between him and his coaching. The new contract was signed for days ago, and by its terms Haughton will draw $7,500 from the Harvard Athletic association and $7,500 from the graduate body.

Yale has a fine backfield in Legge, Bingham and Jacques, and a fine field general to help this trio along in Trevor Smith.

Princeton has a good backfield trio, with a fair quarterback in Jack Eddy to help them along. A remarkably good second string quarter is found in Ames. Tibbott is as good a kicker as the east has turned up so far this year.

Harriet, on the other hand, does not seem so strong as in recent previous years when she was wont to walk roughshod over Yale's cohorts. There are no Malahans nor Brophyes. But Haughton has a penchant for rising to emergencies and by the time the big games are over he is probably in full force a much stronger team on the field than he is now credited with.

Despite the handicap of working without Head Coach Keck, the boys have kept at it in a persistent manner, and have found the coaching of Phillips to be all that could be asked for. During the past two weeks a new Phillips has devised a series of new plays and formations and has taught these to the team with the result that followers of the Janeville boys expect to see some real class uncovered in the game today.

Captain Kober is still a bit lame from his accident in the Jefferson game, but it is reported that he will be in the game today for a time. Woodstock has a good team and has played a number of fast teams this year so the local boys went down expecting a hard fight.

The game marks the close of the season, a season in which Janeville won some games by wide margins and lost others by equally wide margins. The high school has been rather lackluster in recent football material this year and it was only by the most persistent efforts of the coaches and of those one or two players who did have some football in them, that any sort of a team could be developed.

The team was a pleasant surprise to many people who have been surprised regarding the high school as a total incapable of turning out anything in the nature of a football team, and although they were far from championship, they served to arouse some interest in football from a local standpoint. Already those on the inside are predicting better results for next year. Janeville has had a football slump for the last couple of years and it is impossible to get out of such a condition in a single season except with an exceptionally good team.

With the close of the football season all eyes are turning to the basketball prospects. Practice does not start until after Thanksgiving, but things are being made ready for a busy and if possible, successful season. The line-up in today's Woodstock game is: Nuzum, re; Clark, rt; Kimball, rg; Davy, o; Cullen, lg; Crowley, lf; Davison, le; Harter, qb; Allen, rh; O'Brien, lh; Kenning, fb.

Herbert Pennoch of Kennett Square may not be the greatest portrider on the planet, but we notice that when world's series checks are being distributed that Herbie's name is called out.

As a means of disposing of your real estate, the little want ads are sure winners.

STATE APPOINTEES NO LONGER DRAFTED FOR CAMPAIGN WORK

Gov. Philipp Declares That Spectacle of Employees Touring State for Political Purposes Is Thing of the Past.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Sheboygan, Wis., Nov. 4.—Any one who thinks he can win his way by political activity to be put off in Wisconsin has the wrong idea. Governor Philipp's press address here Friday night said that the old system of making political service appointments hinge on political activity or friendship is a relic of the past. He cited as one achievement of his administration that gives him particular satisfaction the fact that politics has been banished from state government. He declared in curt terms that the proposition of making political service the sole standard for public appointment is something he condemns as fully and completely as he condemns the practice of permitting public servants to become professional politicians.

"State employees are not now traveling about the state on state's expenses in the interest of the governor's campaign or any other campaign," Governor Philipp said. "I have given notice to the state employees that they not wish them to give any time to politics. While exercising their rights of citizenship in the same as any other persons, they must devote their time and energies to the discharge of the duties for which they were employed."

"In the light of experience in this state in years gone by I believe it to be an accomplishment that the people of the state will appreciate the practice of permitting state employees to devote their time to politics is vicious as it is costly for the tax payer. I know of no more corrupting influence than to permit state employees or public employees of any kind to devote their time to partisan politics. The best class of service is the one associated with the proposition of making political service the sole standard for public appointments.

"All the appointments I have made political service has not been the standard. That has been changed. McHenry is now the standard. I call attention to the men whom I have appointed to various positions. For the conservation commission Prof. Moody and Mr. Nevin; James Nevins, former fish commissioner; W. E. Barber of La Crosse, a business man; on the tax commission, Mr. Atwood, former assessor of Milwaukee county; on the railway commission, Mr. Jackson, an attorney from Oshkosh; Mr. Alexander of Milwaukee and Prof. Trombauer from the state university; on the agricultural commission Prof. Novak of the state university; state engineer, Prof. Mack of the state university; industrial commission, George H. Hirsch of Grand Rapids; dairy and road commission, George H. of Milwaukee, a former progressive on the state board of which ex-Governor Davidson, George H. Harris of Waukesha and Mr. Lyons of Marion.

Judges Men by Fitness.

"The men I have named Mr. Barber, Mr. Jackson, Mr. Hirsch, Mr. Davidson and Mr. Harris were to my knowledge had in any way interested themselves in my election and in an attempt to do so I was controlled entirely by their fitness for office."

"I do not wish it to be understood that I would not appoint friend to a public position if he is qualified. I am not ungrateful. However, I feel that the positions I have to fill belong to the people and not to me, and that the public interest demands that I select men who are best fitted to render the service for which they are appointed."

"Another feature of my administration to which I wish to call attention is the fact that no state employee has been either asked or permitted to contribute any money to my campaign. The law was not passed around in the capital of the state and state employees are permitted to retain their salaries for themselves."

"Men in public employ are not overpaid and they should not be assessed for political purposes. The government has a right to ask them to do their work and do it well and when they do that they have a right to expect that the work will be maintained in public service, and that it will not be necessary for them in order to remain in the good graces of their superiors to make campaign contributions. A public position should not be purchased by political activity or campaign contributions."

EMERGENCY BOARD

ASKS FOR $49,750

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]

Madison, Nov. 4.—Applications have been filed by the emergency board for funds aggregating $49,750. These are asked for the following institutions:

First: $30,200 for the university to make up deficits in budget due next April.

Second: $5,000 for Milwaukee normal for additional teachers caused by 26 per cent increase in enrollment.

Third: $2,400 for the Stevens Point normal for additional teachers, caused by a 13 per cent increase in enrollment.

Fourth: $1,200 for university school for night instruction work due to increase in attendance.

Fifth: $1,000 for Whitewater normal needed because of error in budget.

Sixth: $550 for Milwaukee normal for supplies necessitated by increase in enrollment.

All this totals up to $45,750. The $39,200 item for the university is the largest and the board of education in negotiation with the board of regents for $40,500 to make up the estimate caused by cutting down the budget estimates.

This latter money will be needed next April. The other items are due to the fact the board of education calculated in the budget for normal increase in enrollment of normal schools. There was more than normal enrollment.

FARMER HARD HIT IN FAKE RACE SWINDLE

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]

St. Joseph, Nov. 4.—Boone Fancher, an aged farmer of Holt county, Missouri, has appealed to the St. Joseph police to assist in apprehending four men who recently defrauded him of $10,000 in a fake race swindle.

Fancher's young wife was found dead in the yard of their home at Savannah, Missouri, two years ago, following a motor car ride to St. Joseph. A Savannah business man was tried for the woman's murder, but was acquitted.

STATE FOR HUGHES BY 25,000 DECLares CHAIRMAN GEO. WEST

Republican Committee Head Makes Final Appeal to Republicans to Get Out the Vote Next Tuesday.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Milwaukee, Wis., Nov. 4.—With the last and greatest week of the campaign ended, and the next three days to be devoted to getting out the vote, Geo. A. West, chairman of the Republican State Central Committee issued a statement to the republican voters of the state on Saturday, urging certain personal work to increase the certain majority for Hughes in Wisconsin. His statement follows:

"I want to express my appreciation of the work which has been done by the enthusiastic republicans of the state for the whole republican ticket from president down. We believe we have done some work in the headquarters of the republican state central committee, but our efforts would have come to naught without the cooperation which we have received and I want to say that there has been no lines drawn between republicans in this fight. The so-called progressive and the so-called conservative has been working side by side. We have fought a good fight, it is a good cause, for the election of a splendid ticket."

"Wisconsin Never In Doubt." In my mind there never has been a time when the result in Wisconsin was in doubt. The election of Governor Philipp and the entire republican ticket from president down was assured since the day of the primary. The fact that we have a candidate for president whose record cannot be attacked, whose honesty and sincerity cannot be denied, made it certain also that when the voters of Wisconsin begin to turn out in large numbers to support the ticket, the election will be carried.

"Mr. Hughes will carry Wisconsin by a majority of more than 25,000. We have taken a careful poll of the state based upon our reports and I am satisfied that this figure is conservative.

"I urge upon the republicans that it is their duty to see that Wisconsin is in the Hughes column by the normal republican majority. For that reason I ask them to devote their time in the next three days as faithfully and unselfishly as they have in the last month. If that is done, and I believe it is hardly necessary to urge it, there will be no question of the result."

WILL RUSH WORK ON NEW REFORMATORY

GERMANY STOPS EXPORT OF SHEET IRON TO DUTCH; SHIPBUILDERS ALARMED

Amsterdam, Netherlands, Nov. 4.—Dutch shipbuilders and the entire metal industry have been much disquieted by the recent restriction of German exports of iron and steel to this country. Shipbuilders are already experiencing a shortage in produce steel and other essential raw materials, and unless an improvement soon comes they may be compelled to import iron and steel to discharge a part of their workmen. Apart from the big demands made on German industry by the manufacture of munitions of war, the latest measure is ascribed in well-informed quarters here to a desire to hamper shipbuilding in Holland now that the Dutch cargo space has been acquired by the Allies. In view of the difficulties of iron and steel and the anticipated scarcity of iron and steel materials, the industrial commission has approached the minister of industry and commerce with a view to the erection of a state distribution bureau in this country, and hope is cherished that the threatened dangers will be warded off.

REPUBLICANS SPEND OVER TWO MILLION

Washington, Nov. 4.—The republican campaign fund already has passed the two million dollar mark as shown by a supplemental statement filed to the clerk of the house, by Cornelius N. Bliss, treasurer of the republican national committee.

MANY DEFECTIVES AMONG CHILDREN OF THE BRITISH

Reports Show That One-Sixth of School Children Are Mentally Defective or Diseased.

London, Nov. 4.—The surprising revelation that at least one-sixth of England's six million school children are "so physically or mentally defective or diseased as to be incapable of deriving benefit from the education that the state provides" is made in a report just issued by the chief medical officer of the board of education.

The report has aroused great interest and has come as a shock to the public generally. The Manchester Guardian says that the report "should awaken fears as to the nation's future as should any warning of disease that defies our arms." It points the point that the waste referred to is preventable and that while it is being lessened by better housing, better labor conditions and purer and cheaper food, together with ample medical facilities and sounder ideas in education and hygiene, that the nation moves with incredible slowness.

Sir George Newman, the chief medical officer, at the conclusion of his report, indicated that a complete scheme is now practically ready that will enable the state to take entire charge of the child, mentally physically and morally with view to preventing in future a repetition of the reports as disappointing as those just issued. The transformation is to be accomplished through the aid of several agencies. The local education authorities, through their school committees, doctors, nurses and thousands of voluntary workers, compose a cooperative system designed to save schools from others to the home and from welfare centers to juvenile employment. In his report Sir George Newman says:

"Eight years' work has brought to light a large mass of physical defect and disease, varied in character and widespread, mostly in preventable disease. In regard to the data thus provided we can form two general conclusions. First, not less than a quarter of a million children are seriously crippled, invalided, or disabled; not less than a million school children are so physically or mentally defective or diseased as to be unable to derive reasonable benefit from the education that the state provides. If this figure be considered merely from a financial point of view and quite apart from the disease, suffering and premature death entailed, it can be seen that the state is not getting adequate returns on physical grounds alone for a substantial part of its expenditure on elementary education."

Consideration of the situation seems to indicate that the physical welfare, and in part the education, of the child of school age is dependent upon ante-school conditions and dependent also upon post-school conditions. In other words, if we are determined to rear a healthy and virile race of high capacity, we must, from a physical standpoint, begin earlier and continue later than the hitherto period of education. What is needed, indeed, is an effective supervision of the home from the end of infancy to adolescence. It is said sometimes that the interest of economy, that the state cannot afford such a complete scheme. My submission is that in the interest of economy, the state cannot afford to neglect a complete scheme."

TO URGE REGULATION OF STORAGE PLANTS

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]

Madison, Wis., Nov. 4.—Congressman Britton's scheme for the regulation of storage plants, which is now being advocated in Illinois, will probably be a subject of legislation in Wisconsin this year. A bill of this character was introduced in the last legislature by Assemblyman Greenwald of Oshkosh and went through the committee of ways and means before it was passed. It is said here that the measure will be introduced at this session of the legislature and will have the backing of the Wisconsin Society of Equity. The Wisconsin bill, as originally drawn, put the administration of the law with the state attorney and had the department of agriculture provide the length of time that articles should be stored and provided that the department make regular inspection of the institutions to see that the terms of the law are complied with.

MAIL MORE PARCELS NOW THAN LAST YEAR

Figures Compiled by Postmaster Show That Janesville's Parcel Post Business Is Growing.

Janesville's manufacturing concern and citizens are sending a good many more packages out of the city this year than they did last year, according to figures compiled by Postmaster J. J. Cunningham. A count of all such packages was kept at the post office for the period from the first of October to the fifteenth of November, 1915, and 1916. This showed for that period last year a total of 5,953 packages were sent out of the city, while this year in the same time 6,792 parcel post shipments were made. This number is a fair average for that length of time in an entire year, so from this it is believed that during 1916 there will be an increase of 13.4 per cent.

The total number of packages handled in the post office, both incoming and outgoing, for the period in question during 1915 was 13,325, while in the present year the number was 15,584, an increase of 2,242 over last year. The number of incoming packages for the fifteen days of November was 3,393 for last year and $302 for this year. This shows that Janesville is still importing more mail packages than it is exporting, but that in comparison to the number of packages handled the percentage in favor of exports is increasing.

The total weight of all parcel post handled in the period of 1915 was 10,414 1/2 pounds, while this has increased to 12,97 pounds for the same time this year. The average weight for all packages shipped out of Janesville was two pounds. This is quite high considering the large number of small packages that are sent by the Parker Pen company and other manufacturing concerns of the city.

Figures taken from Superior papers show that this city with a population of about 45,000 only handled 10,493 parcels in its post office for a two weeks period. The total number handled in Madison for the same period was 42,565.

Issues County Letter.

Postmaster J. J. Cunningham has issued a letter to all rural residents to whom mail is delivered from this post office, in which he sets forth the conveniences of the modern rural free delivery system. Each carrier is authorized to sell stamps, weight parcels, insure parcels, carry C. O. D. registered letters, and sell special delivery stamps. As the carrier arrives at each box at the same time each day country residents can arrange with the carrier and are never obliged to go to a village or city post office. As Mr. Cunningham says, it is the government's aim to give the best service possible. In return it asks for cooperation in boosting good roads, providing good boxes and placing them in convenient locations.

DECLINE IS NOTED IN PARALYSIS CASES

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]

Madison, Wis., Nov. 4.—With only five cases of infantile paralysis reported throughout the state in the past week, as compared with twenty-nine in the preceding week, a sudden decline in the incidence of this sudden disease is evident. During October, the only cases reported were the following: Lafayette township, and Lyons township, one each; Montello township, one; Trempealeau county, two. The total, since July 1 now stands at 432 cases, with forty-four deaths.

AUTO WRECK KILLS THREE, INJURES ONE

Minneapolis, Nov. 4.—Three persons were killed and a fourth person injured, probably mortally, when an automobile driven by E. C. Nelson of St. Paul, plunged down an embankment, killing three persons, and cutting the West River Drive here shortly before daylight.

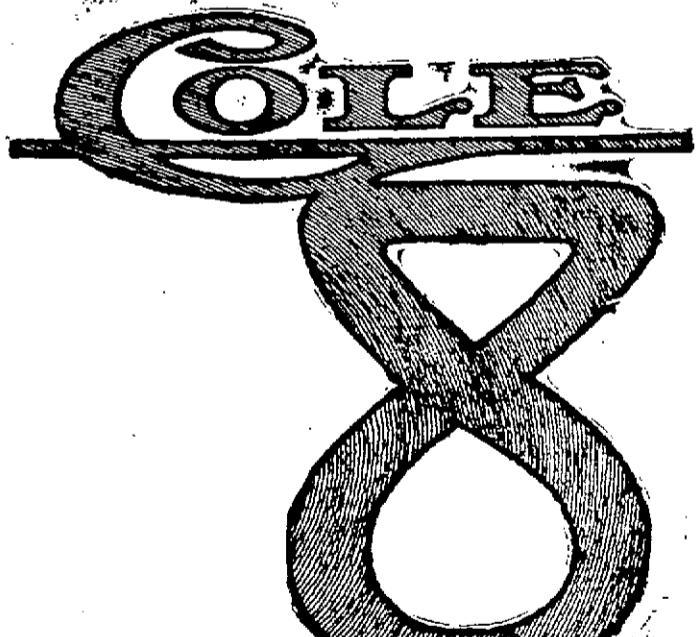

Figures taken from Superior papers show that this city with a population of about 45,000 only handled 10,493 parcels in its post office for a two weeks period. The total number handled in Madison for the same period was 42,565.

Issues County Letter.

Postmaster J. J. Cunningham has issued a letter to all rural residents to whom mail is delivered from this Brant home when the car, shooting over the embankment, turned over, pinning all three men. Few persons working in the vicinity heard Nelson's call for help, lifted him from the wreckage. His three companions apparently were instantly killed.
